Clam Digging: One of Humboldt’s Most Noted Sports

BEACHES FROM SAMOA TO LITTLE RIVER THROUNED AT LOW TIDES

-by CHET SWEDAKEYE

Have you ever gone clam digging in Humboldt? Chances are you have, but if not, give it a try. It’s fun! Especially when fishing season is closed, and you’re in the mood to catch something edible out of the water.

Being practically a non-killer, we went at last just to see what the editor wanted a story on the subject—but, thanks to a number of expert friends, we have seen the light. However, if we get our information mixed up, we don’t blame them. We’ll take

Clam tide occurs when the tides and sun are almost in a straight line toward the earth, during the dark and new moon period. At this time, their000 coast patrol comes higher tides—than an indicating reaction of lower tides in between. It is during day low tide that portions of the beach are exposed that remain under water for the balance of the moon’s 25 day cycle. Good clam tides last from one to six days...good for a few, but not a great
