Garberville--The Heart of the Redwoods

Looking north on Garberville's main street can be seen the many convenient businesses which provide the citizens' needs.

Garberville Nestles in Sleepy Valley--But City Is Wide Awake

By HERB HOLLAND

One of California's most delightful cities, a pride of Humboldt county, is Garberville, which itself is fairly proud of its community and of its locale. Garberville has taken its name from the region. The "Heart of the giant tree" is at home no place more than in Garberville and its environs.

About this time of the year in Garberville, business becomes a winter industry with the coming of the fruit season. Many of the newcomers for a time desert their Valley communities, but most return with a pinted sack.

Outstanding the men and women are the pleasant citizens of Garberville

The charm of Garberville is enhanced by the beautiful Ed River valley which it overlooks from its site among the redwoods.

New Feature

Today the Times is starting a new feature for its readers with this complete page devoted to the southern Humboldt city of Garberville.

The editors would appreciate criticism of the article and the pictures and help that is in the future can use this opportunity in the future.

A statistical report of Garberville's population, schools, churches, police protection afforded, the activities of the volunteer fire department, and the like, will be contained in the more than 100 residents.

There is a five elementary school, and ten church buildings and stores weekly for all faiths to service Garberville as an integral part of the prosperity and growth of Humboldt.

The registering area surrounding Garberville consists of at least 50,000 acres of sheep raising land. (24) A. B. Robinson has 8,000 acres. (25) Other farmers have 10,000 acres. The town is located at the junction of the counties of Sonoma and Mendocino.

LOTUS OF SUNSHINE

The town enjoys sunshine and warmth during more of the year than any other county cities and has a comfortable average of 33 inches of precipitation. The newspaper office is located at the corner of Main and Market streets.

Highway 101 is the main street of Garberville and brings thousands of tourists each year during the summer months and the hunting and fishing seasons. There are many hotels and motels available for tourists, who come to Garberville to enjoy the splendid scenery of the surrounding countryside.

The nearest post office is in Garberville and is a few miles away.

Nancy F. KEMP

The famous Hotel Bowd is just one mile south of Garberville.

Some of Garberville's third grade pupils, seen in a drawing under the teacher Bonnie Knapp.